Professional Expertise

Raymond Yang joined Pyramid Brokerage Company as a Commercial Real Estate Salesperson specializing in commercial, industrial, and investment properties throughout Central New York.

Prior to entering commercial real estate, Raymond built a successful career in technology, business operations, and marketing. He has worked as a Software Engineer and Product Manager, leading software development projects, business process improvements, and cross-functional initiatives for both private-sector and government-related organizations. His background in data analysis, technology, and strategic planning enables him to provide clients with a modern, research-driven approach to commercial real estate.

Raymond's diverse professional experience also includes luxury retail sales with Tiffany & Co. in New York City, where he developed a strong foundation in client service, relationship management, and high-value transactions. Throughout his career, he has worked closely with business owners, investors, executives, and community leaders, helping them identify opportunities and achieve their goals.

Fluent in both English and Mandarin Chinese, Raymond is uniquely positioned to assist domestic and international investors seeking opportunities in Central New York. With the transformative impact of Micron's semiconductor investment and continued regional economic growth, Raymond is passionate about connecting investors, business owners, developers, and tenants with opportunities throughout the Syracuse market.

As both a commercial real estate professional and a technology professional, Raymond brings analytical thinking, market insight, and a client-first approach to every assignment.
